The course "Family Law. Marriage. Marriage regimes. Filiatia," Edition 7 - 2021 published by Universul Juridic, Bucharest, 2021 belongs to the reputed specialist Emese FLORIAN, professor of law, Faculty of Law, University "Babes-Bolyai" of Cluj-Napoca, holder of the courses of family law.

The course deals with the following topics:

- engagement
- the end of marriage
- nullity of marriage
- effects of marriage
- marriage covenant
- regime of legal community, conventional community, separation of property
- grounds and causes of divorce
- filiation towards the father in marriage and the father outside marriage
- filiation in the case of medically assisted human reproduction
- termination of adoption
- parental rights and duties
- loss of parental rights
- the persons between whom there is an obligation of maintenance and the order in which it is owed.

The topics addressed bring into discussion complex issues in the field of family relations representing the expression of the constant concerns of the prestigious author for knowledge and analysis from the scientific perspective of literature and case law both from the perspective of Romanian law and from the perspective of foreign law.

Although the university course is generally characterized by treating the subjects in the classical manner, it also has a pronounced originality by approaching and re-evaluating some of the topics, through the prism of the new regulations adopted in recent years, but also by referring them to the solutions offered by foreign doctrine. At the same time, it opts for themes that the lawyer is confronted with on a daily basis, themes of current interest being of the order of evidence, moreover, the modern dimension of the theme developed, under the sign of European harmonisation of national legislation.

Written in a sober, concise, clear and logical style that is easy to read, the book is characterised by simplicity and, at the same time, by the depth of its analysis, scientific rigour and a wealth of bibliographical references.

We cannot conclude this review without mentioning in particular the results of the academic activity carried out throughout his career through books, articles and participation in various international and national conferences, which bear the mark of competence, thoroughness and consistency, representing the expression of constant concern for quality, knowledge and critical analysis of Romanian and foreign doctrine and jurisprudence in the field of family relations.

In view of the outstanding results on the professional and didactic-educational level, appreciating the value of the published scientific works, the competence, seriousness and professionalism proven and recognized by the academic community, we are of the opinion that this course "Family Law. Marriage. Marriage regimes. Filiation," Edition 7, 2021, written by the distinguished PhD University Professor Emese FLORIAN, is useful for theoreticians, practitioners, doctoral students, master students, students and all those interested in this vast and interesting field.
